EPISCOPAL CONVENTION.

AN EXCITING DISCUSSION—SERIOUS CHARGES AGAINST THE PRESIDENT OF THE CONVENTION. BALTIMORE, Oct. 9 .- The House of Deputies this morning received a message from the House of concurring, does hereby recognize the union with the General Convention of the new Diocese of Pennsylvania, satisfied by the action of the present Genral Assembly, to take effect from and after the 8th day of November next, and that the name of said diocese be ned by primary convention thereof, with the con-

Committee of the two Houses to prepare and present to the next General Convention a version of the Book of amon Prayer in the Spanish language.

ent of the Bishop of Pennsylvania.

At this point the Rev. Dr. Andrews of Virginia rose to question of privilege and said: I see a sermon circused in the house this morning, delivered by our Presi-Sent, in which there is a document, to which my name pears to be attached. My name has never been at ached to it, as the Chairman has already been informed.
The President, Dr. Craik—Yes, Sir, through a letter reseived. I hope you received my reply also,

Dr. Andrews-I did. The sermon is by the President. The President-Does Dr. Andrews desire any explans

The President-I replied to the reverend deputy from Virginia, expressing my great regret that his name had been placed there without his authority, but explaining that I found it on the document and did not see and never had seen his disclaimer until I received his letter.

The Rev. Dr. Vinton of Massachusetts-I rise to a simon, but I am inclined to place it on a broader pundation than my reverend brother has done. I find in the body of this sermon, which bears the imprimative of the Rev. James Crafk, D. D., now-officiating as President of this Convention, a certain document. The seron, it seems to me, has a peculiarly striking and lova-"Beloved, let us love one another, for love is of God, and every one that loveth is born of God and knoweth God. He that leveth not knoweth not God, for

Mr. Whittle of Georgia-I rise to a point of order. It is impossible for any one to foresee what all these matters are going to lead to, and I raise the question of order, inasmuch as this thing has nothing to do with the proceedings of this house. Mr. Vinton—I understand that, Sir.

The President—I beg leave to state as preliminary to the question of privilege, seeing that the document is in the hands of the gentlemen who makes the question of privilege, that the matter came as a surprise upon me privilege, that the matter came as a surprise upon me from the reverend deputy from Virginia, and I admitted his explanation. I do not think there is anything in that sermon (which was a sermon preached in my own parish seburch) which can raise a question of privilege on this floor, and the sermon has not been distributed in this floor, and the sermon has not been distributed in this floor, and the sermon has not been distributed in this celaration from the President can now, if they choose, listen to statements of the question of privilege by the deputy from Massachusetts, and dispose of it as they think proper.

President—I did not understand so.
Vinton—They came through the Post-Office and eased to the delegations of each diocese, and each has the name of the delegate upon it. I think there privilege in opening the subject that it may give the ident, if he chooses it, an opportunity to say whether inself is instrumental in this circulation; but before one to that. I take the same privilege that my her from Virginia has done in calding attention to her from Virginia has we come to that I take the same privilege that my brother from Virginia has done in criting attention to a paragraph in the 15th page in which I am personally interested. I will read it:

The elser Ture, Vision, and others, comprising all the weight of chargier in the Assuable, extractly protested against the action proposed by global cotton Smith the younger Type, and their like. But the freshead carried the day, and then the dignified protesters signed the intended arried the day, and then the dignified protesters signed the intended approach of privilege is this: That here is a document approad alroad systematically to all delegations and every member of this body which contains, so far as I am concerned, under the authority of the dignified anne of our President, a falsity. The statement is untrue, and therefore I am glad of an opportunity of saying so much. I never protested against any document which I afterward signed.

Now, Sir, in regard to the general points, if, with the authority that belongs to the Chair of this body, this document has been circulated, if it has his approval in any form—for it was printed in Louisville, and must have some here by consent—it would appear, if it bears a authority that belongs to the Chair of this body, this document has been circulated, if it has his approval in any form—for it was printed in Louisville, and must have come here by consent—it would appear, fift bears a presumption which is not a pleasant one. The question of privilege is this is it right and is it to be permitted that documents assailing—no other word than that will answer my purpose—assailing a class of churchmen of this Protestant Episcopal Church of ours in as creditable standing as any other members; documents assailing their character or their doings in any ferm shall be studiously circulated among this body, in serder to stir up party strife! The text—Oh that it had been beautifully and apily carried out—what oil it might have spread upon the waters. But here in a Convention whose session has been marked by remarkably pacific characteristics thus far, we come up on this Monday marning and find this pamphlet declaiming severely in all manner of superlative language against all incendiary publications that could be put into a catalogue. I would rank this as number one. Now, I wish that this Convention might pass some act by which such proceedings shall be prohibited for the future. I will not enter into a general criticism of the thing, except so far as to say that if ever there was an illustration of the lunes a non lucendo, if ever there was a back-handed interpretation of a text of Scripture. I know of nothing that can match this as the interpretation of "beloved, let us love one another." Now, Sir, the President has an opportunity, if he pleases, to disclaim the authorizing of this circulation. If the President (it speak it with all deference) does not see fit to disclaim any such agency in the matter, then I do think that it is a question for every lover of peace, for every well-wisher to the Church, to devise some method to be proposed and ensoted there that shall prevent such things in the future.

The President—I have only to state in re-any such agency in the matter, then I do think that it is a question for every lover of peace, for every well-wisher to the church. The course of the course sentation, so far as I am personally concerned, of almost my whole status and bearing, and on that account I am a little impatient of the association. Be that as it may, Sir. I do think it is a grave question for this body to determine, by a rule that shall guide them to all time, whether pamphiets having any sent tendency as this, shall be permitted, addressed as it were officially, semi-officially at least, to the members of this body, the direct and only at least, to the members of this body, the direct and only affect of which must be to create ill-feeling. We pray-for the unity of the church; we pray every day against the unity of the church; we pray every day against ignorance, pride, and prejudice. How can such prayers be answered, when, upon the very heels of them, such be answered, when, upon the very heels of them, such practical measures as this are to be taken to foment party strife? I submit it to the Convention as a Christian brother, in a mood of feeling separate from my personality in the matter. It seems to me that if I were an outsider, if I were elected to a standard far above those terrene associations, I should say such a thing ought to be prohibited by all means, and that this body, the representative of the church, should put its heel upon every such attempt, in the name of God and peace.

Rev. Dr. Adams of Wisconsin—Dr. Vinton has just expressed the opinion that this matter should be put on the ground of principle, not on the ground of any personality whatever, and it is upon that doctrine that I offer the following resolution:

*Resolved, That this House will not restrict the liberty of debate in any of its members, or the liberty of instruction, by censaring in the very slightest degree, or put benselves in the position of seeming to censarie any privated document put before the ages of members of this House by any reputable member of the same.

On motion of Dr. Haickte of New-York, the whole subject was laid on the table.

Dr. Goodwin said he presented the matter as representing the Diocese of Pennsylvania. Personally he was opposed to the principle. It was referred to the Com-

A memorial from the clergy and laity of the Western Convocation of Iowa was presented, setting forth the great necessity of evangelical labor in that district. It was referred to the Committee on the State of the Church. The Rev. Dr. Adams of Wisconsin then rose, and read a dispatch from Chicago relative to the great fire raging in that city. He asked that the Convention offer up its prayers for Chicago, now in mourning, and submitted the following resolution:

The resolution was passed, and the President appointed the Rev. Drs. Beardley of Connecticut and Andrews of Virginia to conduct the prayers. The reverend gentlemen seon appeared in their ministerial robes and recited the Litany and appropriate prayers, the house responding in a fervent "Amen," After those services five minutes were passed in silent prayer.

The Committee on New Dioceses submitted a report and a resolution that the Diocese of Arksansas be admitted to full canonical union with the General Convention.

A resolution by Mr. Jackson of Maline, that offerings of the congregations at services this evening be asked in aid of the sufferers by the fire at Chicago, and the Secretary be instructed to transmit it to the Mayor of Ghicago, in the name of the Convention, to be applied under his direction, was adopted unanimously amid expressions of deepest sympathy. The resolution was communicated to the House of Bishops, and shortly thereafter the following was received from that body:

THE RACE FOR THE LORILLARD CUP-A STRONG BREEZE AND AN EXCITING CONTEST-SPLEN-DID SAILING OF THE SAPPHO.

NEWPORT, Oct. 9 .- The race, to-day, for the Lorillard Cup elicited unusual interest, from the fact that it was calculated to display the sailing abilities of the yacht Enchantress, which is yet a stranger in American waters, and of deciding finally any doubts that might exist regarding the relative speed of the Sappho and Palmer. The Dreadnought also hoped to be able to do something brilliant, which would entitle her to a just measure of consideration.

The Dreadnought, which had been got reany early, wee in excellent sailing trim, and the opinion was unani-mously expressed that, if she ever would have an opportunity in which to display her latent ability the time was near at hand. She was doing well, and doubtlessly giving much encouragement to the heart of her captain, when, at 7:18, off Bateman's Point, she carried away her flying-jibboom, and so lost all hope of starting in the race. Much sympathy was everywhere expressed for Capt. Samuels, who throughout the season has been signally unfortunate.

The Sappho, keeping to windward, passed within hailing listance of the lightship, on the port tack, at 8:30:52. The Palmer followed at 8:34:55, and the Enchantress two min ntes later. The yachts all headed for Narragansett River, and when, at 8:42, the Sappho tacked, close into hiver, and when abs: 42, the sapphe tacked, close hite the shore, she had gained fully one-eighth of a mile on the Palmer, which, upon going about at 8:48, showed an actual loss in one tack of 44 minutes. The Enchantress tacked soon after, and all stood far enough on the starboard tack to make the Block Island buoy on the next port tack. This carried the yachts so far to sea that the low, sandy shore of Point Judith soon sank beneath the horizon.

low, sandy shore of Point Judith soon and seas that the horizon.

This course was held until 10:17, when the Sappho went about, and the Palmer at 10:24, directly in her wake, showing a gain of 114 minutes for the leading boat. The Enchantress was new worfully behind, and did not cross the wake of the Palmer until 10:42. The seasure of the wake of the Palmer until 10:42. The seasure of the wake of the Palmer until 10:42. The seasure of the wake of the Palmer until 10:42. The seasure of the wake of the Palmer until 10:42. The seasure of the wake of the Palmer until 10:42. The seasure of the wake of the Palmer had found it necessary to take a reef in her mainsail. Nearing the buoy, the Enchantress was seen away on the starboard quarter of the Sappho, a mere speech on the horizon. The Sappho rounded the buoy at 11h. 69m. 15s., and the Palmer exactly 10 minutes later. having regained 14 minutes of her time. The Enchantress was so far behind that none saw her go round the buoy. The Sappho at once run up her working topsails and set her balloon sails, and the reef out of her mainsail, and set her topsails. The two remaining yachts were enabled to lay their course by paying out their main booms, and both made remarkable time to the Vineyard Sound lightship, sailing, as they did, through the tronge of the sea.

It was anticipated that the Palmer would display great ability with a free sheet, but the sea was too heavy for her, and, on the contrary, she rapidly fell astern of the Sappho. About 12:30 the wind freshened, and the remainder of the distance to the lightship was made by the Sappho at the rate of 15 knots per hour. This will be seen from the fact that she accomplished the distance of 28 miles in 2 hours and 18 minutes. The Sappho turned the light-ship of Vineyard Sound, at 127:05, and the remainder of the belis and the cheers of the men on board the factsh-ship of Vineyard Sound, at 127:05, and the remainder of the belis and the cheers of the men on board tax forms of the belis and the cheers of the men on board

The Palmer came at 1:49:30, but in attempting to go about for the light-ship miss, ays, and was carried on the wrong slide, so that much time must have been less in regaining a weather position sufficient for her to have successfully turned. The Palmer then filled away, and bore to the south-west about one-quarter nile, to show a good weather position in order to save as much time as possible at the home stake. By not rounding the light-ship she forf-sited all stake. By not rounding the first-stap and colored and all claim to the prize, but saved fully 15 minutes of time. Her mainsail and foresail were at once lowered and reefed. The ocean off Buzzari's Bay was as rough as the strong tide setting out against the wind could make it, and the yachts both shipped heavy seas. This region of the upper Atlantic Coast is notorious for its netly chopped seas, and to-day such waves were anything but comfortable. Staunch and seaworthy as is the Sappho, she careened over until the water rushed into the cockpit. She shipped fearful seas over the weather bow, which thoroughly dreached every one on deck, shook the vessel in every timber, and turned into foam the water for rods around, but she rose like a cork, and in the more expressive than choice vernacular of the salling-master, "went for it again, showing her nose through the waves." She never reafed anything, although at times grave apprehensions were entertained of the safety of her rigging. The Sappho reached the lightship at 207.50, having mode the run in 20.045. The Palmer arrived at 417.54. The Sappho will sail for Europe about April 1, for a rules around the British Isles, and in the Baltz and Moditerraneam. Tee race for the cup given by Vice-Comfodore Douglass, will be sailed to-morrow over the same course. The Wanderer, Dreadmaught, and Palmer will start.

The Sappho wins the race and cup by 35 minutes and
